WENDY WHEELER, President,
Innovation Center for Community and Youth Development

Embracing Social Media

Because the youth and community development fields are so rapidly changing, keeping up with the latest news, tips and tools is crucial to successful work.

At the Innovation Center we understand this better than anyone. So to ease the way you get your information we're embracing social media - blogging, Facebook, and Idealist.

Using these tools to connect with the Innovation Center will allow you to access real-time information to strengthen your work. Our blog shares tips and best practices with the field. Recent posts help you

- Integrate shared leadership and service-learning
- Foster inquisitiveness and innovation with leadership work
- Inspire others to embrace change

Connecting with the Innovation Center through Facebook and Idealist will help you connect with others in your field to raise questions and share best practices.

Our partners are a wide and diverse group - but whether it's a large foundation, a network of community groups, or an individual practitioner, all share a commitment to young people and community. Interfacing with this community online - swapping stories, tips, advice - is just another way to grow your work.

So check out our blog and find our pages on Facebook and Idealist! The Internet offers a whole new way to interact and work for change - we can't wait to be your guide.
